

352.12
Fairfield-Suisun Army Air Base, California

15 March 1945

EXAMINATION IN MILITARY COURTESY AND DISCIPLINE

This examination in Military Courtesy and Discipline must be completed in one (1) hour. There are fifty (50) questions. The correct answer to each question, - and the questions have been so designed that there is only one correct answer is worth two (2) points, making a total possible perfect grade of 100%. 70% or higher constitutes a passing grade.

The first thirty-five (35) questions are of the "True-False" variety. In the left margin of the paper to the left of the number of the question, mark a capital "T" if the statement is true, and the capital "F" if the statement is false. If the examiner cannot tell your T's from your F's, the answer will be marked wrong.

The last fifteen (15) questions are of the "multiple choice" variety. You are given several answers; only one of these is correct. Underline the correct answer.

MARK

TRUE - FALSE

T or F

- T (1). The gist of military discipline is obedience to the will of the leader.
- T (2). Under a good system of military discipline, the individual soldier surrenders all freedom of action.
- T (3). The American system of discipline emphasizes the importance of the individual soldier as an individual.
- T (4). The spirit of team play is essential to military discipline.
- T (5). The relationship between discipline and morale is of the utmost significance.
- F (6). Individual pride in the outfit is not essential to discipline where good leadership is present.
- F (7). Commendation for duty well performed is not as important to discipline as corrective action for delinquencies.
- T (8). Corrective measures are to be made privately where practicable.
- T (9). Harshness of manner or of tone are to be avoided in taking corrective measures.
- F (10). Proper dress and smartness of appearance alone are conclusive proof of true discipline.
- T (11). Military courtesy is extended to juniors as well as seniors.
- T (12). Courtesies are rendered to the position of a leader rather than his person.
- T (13). The salute is the most important of all military courtesies.
- T (14). A salute is held until returned by the person saluted.

variety. In the left margin of the paper to the left of the number of the question, mark a capital "T" if the statement is true, and the capital "F" if the statement is false. If the examiner cannot tell your T's from your F's, the answer will be marked wrong.

The last fifteen (15) questions are of the "multiple choice" variety. You are given several answers; only one of these is correct. Underline the correct answer.

MARK

TRUE - 1/ISE

T or F

- T (1). The gist of military discipline is obedience to the will of the leader.
- T (2). Under a good system of military discipline, the individual soldier surrenders all freedom of action.
- T (3). The American system of discipline emphasizes the importance of the individual soldier as an individual.
- T (4). The spirit of team play is essential to military discipline.
- T (5). The relationship between discipline and morale is of the utmost significance.
- F (6). Individual pride in the outfit is not essential to discipline where good leadership is present.
- F (7). Commendation for duty well performed is not as important to discipline as corrective action for delinquencies.
- T (8). Corrective measures are to be made privately where practicable.
- T (9). Harshness of manner or of tone are to be avoided in taking corrective measures.
- F (10). Proper dress and smartness of appearance alone are conclusive proof of true discipline.
- T (11). Military courtesy is extended to juniors as well as seniors.
- T (12). Courtesies are rendered to the position of a leader rather than his person.
- T (13). The salute is the most important of all military courtesies.
- T (14). A salute is held until returned by the person saluted, or until he has passed.
- F (15). Commissioned officers of our services, such as the Army, Navy, Marine Corps, and the Coast Guard, are the only officers entitled to the salute.